

Callback Side- Bonnie

BONNIE is alone in the hangar with the animals.

BONNIE

(to DOUG)

I'm just doing one more litter scoop, and then I'll get them on the planes!

SHE bends down to a carrier.

Lyle. You're a beautiful cat. I've taped your pill bottle to your carrier and made sure someone'll see it. You did good. You're going to be fine.

SHE moves along.

Ralph. You're a good cocker spaniel. I know the night security crew ran you a bit ragged, so I want you to sleep on the plane, okay?

RALPH barks.

Okay.

SHE moves again.

... Unga... I've never met a rare Bonobo chimpanzee before. We don't get many of them here in Newfoundland. And since your partner there likes to throw his own feces, I'm going to say that you are the nicest rare Bonobo chimpanzee I've ever met... And I want you to know that I'm sorry... I'm sorry that you lost your baby... I've got three, and some days they're more trouble than they're worth... Anyway. You're going to be okay.
